Flames of Revolt in Cities Reveal American Hypocrisy

IN NEWARK

Newark, N.J.—It all started with a cab driver being beaten up and a group of Negroes starting to gather in groups. They came and broke up the group in front of the local clubs. Then everyone got together and they stormed the fourteenth precinct.

What made the people really mad was that the state troopers caught some 20 to 25 Negroes drinking a lot, you know, a wine-based drink in the local restaurants. These state troopers drove by at full speed, at 50 miles per hour, and shot him in the back of the head and just kept going straight up the street. And that's some of these men, not boy gangs, raised Sears and Roebuck.

COPS SET OFF LOOTING

The main thing is that nobody was hurt. But when the cops began banging on the heads, they started throwing bottles and stuff and went out store windows, but nobody did anything.

It started with the younger people 20 to 30 years old, their favorite stores. They went in, and then everybody else got the idea to go. But looting was not what started the whole thing. We were shooting our endemic in city cops. And as the cop cars came around the street, these two men had been in there, in the street and the cop cars couldn't ride over them. When they tried to back up we threw spring balls behind them.

Then we started throwing rocks because we had no ammunition to shoot back. The cops were shooting people down as fast as they could.

The real man says that if the Negroes take over the city they will eventually take over the country because the power is in the city. They are trying to rear the Negro vote out of Newark, because central Newark is over 90% Negro.

Fury of Negro Revolts Matches Determination for Freedom

Detroit was the place where the Negro Revolt had covered the length and breadth of the land in increasing forms, all reached its height in Red College's heights of intensity and revealed entirely new forms of development in the six days from July 23 to July 28.

For four years it took for 40 explosions to mature between Watts, 1965, and Newark, 1967, there were 40 outbursts in the single week between Detroit and Milwaukee. And official sources had to admit that there were no less than 193 more "too much to explode at any minute."

VOICES FROM BELOW

To the question: "Why?" if happened, the Negroes in the ghetto have some fundamental answers:

In Newark, a 42-year-old Negro youth and his younger brother, that the right that we ought not to be beat on the head all the time just because we are black.

And a woman summed it up: "We're not going to give anything of anything unless you make us."

In Detroit, a Negro, watching the men, women and children run from stores and windows, that this is still another, perhaps more profound, way: "Why did it happen to me? I was on the right."

And a people's wrath.

IN DETROIT

By Charles Denby

Detroit, Mich.—On Monday, July 24, the second day of the revolt in Detroit, a skeleton crew of workers appeared at the Chrysler plant gate for the morning shift. Some were saying it was no use going in, because the men knew that the auto plants closed until further notice. Several of the supervisors were standing with the workers, and said, "Let's go in, maybe you fellows won't get paid for hours.

After punching our cards, we noticed there was less than 20% of the department there, and when the whistle blew to start the shift, the company said all of us were going to work on one floor.

SMOKE AND HUM

No production was running and we could look out of the windows and see billows of black smoke shooting skywards, and then suddenly the red flames following the smoke. Every four or five minutes this would be repeated.

The two he mentioned were the worst in the street, and hatred had spread in different areas of the city.

We didn't know if the foremen were until an hour later, when a Negro foreman came up and said they were in conference with the plant superintendent, and said the Negro foremen were frightening stiff.

The scene was to be the last word in the street, and hatred had spread in different areas of the city.

The trouble with that fairy tale is this: where, as President, he must plead with the people and thus, is double-tongued, as the have-it-alls.

Italians Hit U.S. Actions in Vietnam

Milan, Italy. The U.S. invasion of the demilitarized zone of Vietnam met with an immediate and spontaneous reaction in Italy. At Milan, more than 10,000 people poured into the streets after the news of the invasion was received by radio and then through the afternoon newspapers. People began to arrive in front of the U.S. Consulate, at union and party halls, at various places where they meet publicly.

We’ll Be Free—or Die

The worst has not been told about race hatred and calling the Negro a second class citizen. Whites just can’t see why the trouble white people had with their children burning the stores in Birmingham, Mich., and the Negro teenager who had nothing to do but to light a fire because he didn’t have a job. The whites may say it was just because of the Negro on the street anymore.

They have got to learn that the Negro bring to the white people something that white people never got. It’s the Negro on the street anymore. The time has come where the Negro must fight to hold onto his own.
NAA Election Aftermath

By Kute Carrway

Los Angeles, Calif. — U.A.W. Local 887 held an election this year in which the usual heavy handed hodge-podge of union politicking resulted in a questionable victory for incumbent President Lee.

Lack discontent and unrest gave opposing candidates a substantial number of votes, but the results were too close to call. The opposition vote total 1,210, about 25% of the possible 5,000 votes cast, did not surprise observers since Lee had exerted his serpentine abilities in politics, began his "cheat 'em again" campaign right after the election, and was watched and snickered at by the workers. The contrast between the workers and the high profile unionization drive that is being conducted by the company began implementing "petty" disputes as job classifications which led to state over and over again that his responsibility. NAA's deficiencies should be the determining factor.

THE NEGRE REVOLT

The only thing I can think about is the Negro Revolution. At work I have no personal family in check to keep from screaming, "Long Live Liberty" or none apace. I detest all violence. But I have looked at how the Negroes have seen their slums, the conditions under which they are forced to live, the got ready to work, the slums of the rich, the alleys, and I have talked with the unwashed who never laid eyes on a college classroom about weighty social problems, and I thought I must organize to understand a little.

I think I can see the reasons and necessity for this outburst — certainly I have a better understanding of the Negroes than those who said that they are running this country to the dogs, those politicians who are beginning to rave about a "Consensus" and "other driving forces" that have become stand-ins for violence and what they keep from getting their trouble with this is an antigun act.

Write Chicago

The fact that there were few acts of violence directed against the whites makes welcome. If we took interviews and reports from the Negro population, which we heard on TV, as typical, we would read to the whites what was the main shock.

The question of whether it could happen in Britain is now being discussed. I have never read or heard about share of white racists.

H.M.

San Francisco

The workers in my shop were discussing Newark, and we all agreed on one thing: how the "black parade" in the newspaper was the main shock. And all that is but the beginning. Wait till all the "reports" are out. The majority of legislation passed, further "training in riot control" (practiced)—the idea that we have gone the totalitarian way and prepared for World War III simultaneously. The other way is to order from the barrel of a gun, and from the legislative hopper, will co-opt to give reality to the nightmare mirage of fascist totalitarianism.

What can stop this horror from realizing itself?

WHO WILL DO IT?

The victory of the Negro people, full of purpose, has attacked only the symptoms of oppression—the white landlord in the slums, the white merchant, the white middleman. They do not because they do not know who Mr. Big is. Rather it is because they do not see white labor ready to join them in their determination to undermine the whole system. They know better than the elitist leaders that, without white labor, the system cannot be torn up by its roots.

This is not to say that white labor, not as a sometime thing, not as the exception, solidarize itself with black labor, but as a way that alone can blind revolt become social revolution.

The black masses have already laid the groundwork for this, and they are looking forward to the coming winter.

In 1956, with the Montgomery Bus Boycott, their self-organization was an American scientific achievement. From the daily mass meetings to the organization of their own transportation.

By 1960, when the sit-downs at lunch counters initiated the Negro sit-down movement, the Negro was recognized as a new force was born: a whole new generation of revolutionaries, who understood.
The Arab-Israeli Collision — and the Struggle for the Mind of Man

By Raya Dunayevskaya

The appearance of an English translation of Birth of our Power by Victor Serge is as timely as today's headlines. This documentary novel is a record of the great Russian Revolution, and Petrograd, in the aftermath of the great Russian Revolution, is still a living, somber memory. It is the story of the old generation which has lost all recollection of social revolution, unfelt by the young generation that lacks the experience, the tradition, and the historic weight of the revolution, and covered over by the current popularity of "short-cuts" and "super-solutions." This book-playing, which possibly will emerge from the tons of tears, ink, smears and stink on this earth, I dare only to term a colossal tragedy for both the Jews and the Arabs.

I liked it that Political Letter very much. Please send me ten more copies. I'd like to sell them to the local Yiddish Middle East held by the Trotskyists...

EDITOR'S Note: We wish to thank all those readers who either sent in copies to their own friends, or ordered additional copies for themselves and enemies as well.

The threat of guerrilla warfare in the Middle-East seems an attempt to carry out the promise to make it another Vietnam. It is clear that the Arabs themselves have been to agree to direct negotiations with Israel, if they have any presision that if the U.S. could be involved in another Vietnam. They are making a bold move to Kosygin and his colleagues.

A considerable number of attention has been focused on that move to the civil war in China and Vietnam. It looks as if we are on the eve of a new phase of new and new alignments.

In the meantime, hundreds of countries are now aware of the order in Russia in order to celebrate the Russian Revolution. What they have in mind is that this is the first great event is of a mystery to me. Why couldn't we prevent them from taking the free trip.

The Arab people gave no support to their leaders or they wouldn't have been run down in four days as they were. I don't think anyone will ever forget that part of the world among the masses that they have achieved a certain level of freedom, I mean.

As a Jew and a Marxist-Humanist, I am too much aware of the physical and mental power of prejudice — anti-Jewish and anti-Black. The State has no right to control the minds of all, as it exists. To say that Israel has as much right to exist as any other state is a very serious point, which seems to discredit Marxist-Humanism as a liber-ation tendency, and marks the second position of the state, which is a legacy from the Russian revolution. Two Reviews Pose Pamphlet’s Essence

As Others See Us

The arrival of automation dresses this demand in new clothes. Can it be coincidental that this phenomenon, which is giving humankind new possibilities, is also the occasion of some critical philosophy? Karl Marx, in his Struggles of the Working Man, said that “The development of capital means the development of human freedom. It frees man from the tutelage of custom and tradition.” But the author of the current pamphlet, a critic of capitalism, asks: “Where are we?” The book, Republicanism and its Philosophy, by Raya Dunayevskaya, is the subject of a review by Bob Potter, in the Chicago Tribune. Potter states: “This whole subject is dealt with much more fully in her Marxist Humanism, the Communist opposition to the young Marx’s writings had as much an academic air as the empiricism of a machine gun.”

Mission Impossible

Detroit, Mich.—Riots are caused by conditions rather than race, but it just so happened that this condition which produce these riots are faced mostly by Negroes: unemployment, discrimination, and inferior education. And it seems that riots really can be eliminated. The Federal governments refuse to do something to change the conditions until after the riots.

Impossible can become Mission. The conditions that produce riots can be eliminated before the Mission is finished.
